

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Being able to access and adjust data feeds is critical to trading analysis and stock price monitoring. With the prior tasks complete, we have the adjusted data set up on your system and piped into Perspective.

For traders to have a complete picture of all the trading strategies being monitored, several screens typically display an assortment of live and historical data at their workstations.

Given that an enormous amount of information and data are produced at once, visualizing data in a clear manner with UI/UX considerations accounted for is critical to providing traders with the tools to improve their performance